

Musical Bottles

Before you recycle, have a go at this: making music from your plastic soft drink bottles. Sounds mad, but really kind of fun. It's incredibly easy too—just hold the bottle up to your lips (without its lid) and simply blow across the top. You can vary the pitch by putting different amounts of liquid inside the bottle. If you gather a whole collection of bottles with different amounts of liquid in each, you can create a range of sounds, even setting them up along a table top in increasing/decreasing order to create a plastic bottle 'xylophone'. Soft drink bottle music will provide hours of cheap musical fun for you and your family.
